

A Surging American Middle Class

Over the last few years, median household income—in effect, the growing middle class—has gained by an average of approximately $2,000 to $5,000 in annual returns. Trends of the past century are undeniable: our country is in the midst of a boom unlike any we've witnessed in the history of a country's path to industrialization.

